ALEXANDRIA GAZETTE AND DAILY ADVERTISER.

SAMUEL SNOWDEN,

Daily Gazette $7—Country Gazette $5.

THURSDAY, OCTOBER 23, 1817.

From the Richmond Compiler.

A RIDDLE FOR THE LADIES...WITH ITS SOLUTION.

I've thought the world, the more it grew, Should with its age be wiser too;
Experience is a useful sage,
To check the vices of the age;
But all her maxims are despised;
And folly's flattering dictates prized; Good sense and sober truth, it seems,
Are laid aside as idle dreams, And pride and silly fashion still Control the heart and guide the will.

What harmless looking thing is this?
Surely it never did amiss;
A thing so simple and so plain,
Could never well have given pain!
"Hold, sir, you do not know me well—Have patience, I will briefly tell.
Though harmless I may seem to be,
I am of murderous pedigree;
Pride is my father's hated name,
And cruelty my angry dame;
My sisters are disease and fly, Hysterical grief and melancholy; I'm courted by my lady fair,
Who prizes me with tender care;
I visit in her dressing room,
And sleep amidst her nice perfume.

"I often on her toilet lay,
And doze the lonesome night away;
Nay more, in her carresses plac'd,
She always binds me round her waist; Abroad, at home, afar, and near,
I'm her companion every where;
And though I am a wicked elf, Delighting to amuse myself, Sometimes to give my mistress pain,
I almost squeeze her waist in twain;
Yet strange to tell, the more she squeez'd The more she seemeth to be pleas'd."

"That I'm an ingrate is most clear—For in return for all this care,
All this fondness, all this love, I yet a cruel monster prove;
My lady's turtles are my food,
I freely drink her limpid blood;
I pluck away the rose's glow,
And let the sickly saffron grow;
I blight the lustre of her eyes,
And strain their orbs with languid dyes;
That rosy urchin call'd a smile,
I strangle when he lives awhile;
I point diseases' pungent smart,
And like a vulture gnaw her heart.
My name—upon your heart endorse it, My gentle mistress calls me—

CORSLITT."

FOR THE ALEXANDRIA GAZETTE.
A letter from a worthy sailor to the object of his affections.

DEAR KITT,

What's the use of your backing and filling, if you really mean to join convey and sail over life's ocean with me to the port of Happiness. You well know the trim of my ship, and seldom see her by the head; and I will give you my honest word, providing we let go love's anchor before the chaplain, that I will never back my main-top-sail or raise tack or sheet for the farthest maid now afloat.

The stores I have on board will be sufficient to carry us through the voyage, allowing we should ship one or two during the passage, and never shall come upon short allowance until we steer by the compass of economy.

But you must remember, Kitt, to keep a right look out under the lee. Should the shoals of poverty make their appearance you must sing out, that I may tack ship in season. I hope 'twill never be said that ever I was wrecked on the shoals of Misfortune by the misconduct of my mate; but I'll promise you, Kitt, if you obey my orders, I will pilot you safely to the port of Contentment.

You are welcome to overhaul my old log book, and see if I have steered an honest course to get thus far distant in life, and never be once was caught in the bay of Misfortune; and that was owing to the sun of intelligence, who had long been beclouded, which caused me to stand in for a stack of hay, that stood high on an ill tempered hill, which I took to be a light house on Cape Comfort.— The wind was then blowing a hard gale from the Point Ungrateful, and squally, and a head beat sea of envy running,
'twas too dangerous to tide at anchor; and especially under the guns of Fort Maze, that kept up a constant fire on me; however, Kitt, I boxed off, by double manning hope's windlass and heaving the anchor of sincerity to the bow of reason, sheathing home at the same time the three top-sails of prudence, which were soon filled by the breath of resolution, and I happily clawed off, and had the gratification to take the latitude and longitude of the place, and was others of the danger who might stand in for that fatal hay stack, which lies just above the port of Bliss.

I have now, Kitt, given you an abstract from my log book, and if you see fit to leave too, don't wait for another breeze, for you know not which way I shall steer, and, probably, this will be the last affectionate note that you get from
JACK LEAVETT.

ALEXANDRIA: THURSDAY, OCTOBER 23, 1817.

It is said in some London paper, that letters from Madrid state that 11,000 picked troops are ordered to hold themselves in readiness for embarkation to Buenos Ayres, to proceed against the insurgents.—Eleven thousand troops!!— Newspaper paragraphists have for some years past got into the habit of exercising the cheap profusion and liberality of the novel makers. Among the papers of Richardson, the celebrated author of Pamela, Grandison, & Clarissa, was found a letter of Sam: Johnson's, written in his days of extreme poverty, requesting a loan of five pounds eighteen shillings, to relieve him from an arrest of his person for that sum, which had just taken place.
On the margin of the letter that precious novel-writer had written this memorandum: "Sent Six Guineas."—Upon which, Arthur Murphy, in his life of Johnson, makes this just remark:—Had an incident of this kind occurred in one of his Romances, Richardson would have known how to grace his story; but in fictitious scenes generosity costs the writ-ter nothing.—So the paragraphist—or so the gratuitous letter writer.—It costs neither one nor the other a cent of ink more to bring eleven thousand Spanish soldiers into the field than to bring eleven; but we doubt whether, except in the ink of paragraphists, such a number could be disposed of by Ferdinand.— The last batch of troops appropriated to the purpose of subduing the insurgents, were set afloat with great difficulty, after long delay, and their deeds of arms have afforded no great encouragement to make another experiment, even if Ferdinand had the money:—but, whence is he to draw that?—Anticipating this difficulty, the paragraphist provides for it in his own generous way:—"The shipping, to convey them to the shores of South America, (says he) is to be furnished by the French government." This is what the Proverb calls, leaping out of the frying-pan into the fire!—How can France, who is barely able to stand under the pressure of her pecuniary distresses, supply Ferdinand? It is absurd to think it.—And if she could and did, what would it avail against the spirit of South America?— Nothing!—We believe it all to be mere newspaper title-tattle.

Savannah, Oct. 14.

We have conversed with several gentlemen from Amelia, who represent the state of affairs as being very quiet. No thing of importance had occurred since the burlesque attack and mock-volant battle given by the Spaniards on the 15th.
This vigorous effort, so characteristic of Spanish bravery, seems to have exhausted the strength of the doughty combatants, and forced them into a calm as profound and death-like as that observed by nature after the horrors of some dreadful storm!

LATEST FROM THE SOUTH.

We have been politely favored with the following extract of a letter, dated St. Mary's, Oct. 4.

"I am informed that the plan of attack laid down by governor Coppenger to his officers showed a great deal of skill, and must have succeeded in the capture of Fernandina if properly conducted; but, as that event did not take place, the governor is exceedingly disgusted with his officers and agents.— Much discontent prevails among the inhabitants of St. Augustine; and, as regards the people of the country, they are daily coming to Fernandina to make terms with the officers of the liberating army. Some of the officers of the Maine, civil and military, have already applied to governor Hubbard to renew their commissions; so that whenever a respectable force may assemble for the purpose of reducing St. Augustine, my opinion is, that they will be assisted by the people of the country, and that it will become an easy conquest. There is some difficulty to be settled between the American and French parties at Fernandina, about gen.
Aury's  troops being in garrison.— I hope it will be amicably settled."

From the Rhode Island American.
DEVIL'S HOLE.

the following extract of a letter from an officer in the United States' army, dated Fort Niagara, Sept. 27:
"I made an excursion, not long since, in company with three other gentlemen, to a place called the Devil's Hole. It is a huge chasm in the bank of the river three miles below the falls. The height of the bank at this place is estimated at nearly 300 feet from the surface of the river, and is composed chiefly of layers of limestone. In this bank, a gap extending from the border of the river about 300 yards into the country and of various width, from 26 to 600 yards, appears as if dug out by human labour. Its walls or sides are either perpendicular or sheering over, but in no place sloping—so that on looking over the brink you would suppose a person at the bottom could have but small hopes of ever arriving upon the surface of the earth again. No outlet appears but that of the river, and that offers only the last consolation to misery—death. But fear and astonishment deform objects. After the first impressions have subsided, and the dizziness caused from looking down from such a height, has left the head steady, the view is of a different character. At the upper extremity, towards the country, the perpendicular descent is not more than 40 or 50 feet, after which the angle of the slope to the river side is about 45 degrees. In a field at the distance of 4 or 500 yards from this point, a small brook suddenly leaves its course and sinks into the earth, and is seen no more till it emerges in foam and bubbles in the centre of the Devil's Hole, and whence it pursues a rough precipitous channel into the Niagara.

A deed of horror was acted at the De-vil's Hole of which it was a proper theatre. Tradition tells the story and ascribes to that of the origin of its name.—On a certain night during the last French war, as a party of Englishmen were going from the head to the foot of the portage, with waggon loads of merchandise and under an escort of soldiers, a party of Indians in alliance with the French sprang from a ravine just in the rear of the Devil's Hole, where they had laid in ambush, and cut them off from retreat in every direction but into the Hole. The dreadful yell breaking upon the still gloom of midnight, and resounding through the dark cavern and the forrest, announced their fate, and was alone sufficient to deprive them of all power of resistance.—They surrendered therefore without a struggle, expecting the toma-hawk soon to put an end to their terrors and their existence. But no—they were mistaken. The savage seems here to have risen above himself in horrors. They conducted their victims to the edge of a cliff which hangs over the Devil's Hole, and with one sweep plunged them all into the profound abyss. Men, beasts, and waggon, all fell together, and were dashed to pieces on the bottom, excepting one man who escaped in a most extraordinary manner by lodging in the branch of a tree growing near the precipice. He is said to be living now somewhere in this state.

There may be some exaggeration in this story, but I give the facts as I received them.—In evidence of the truth of the story, there have pieces of iron belonging to a waggon been found on the spot where they fell. Travellers who have visited the falls, have, heretofore, looked into the Devil's Hole and retired, without indulging their curiosity further, but several of the inhabitants in the vicinity have ventured down before we undertook to explore it. We effected our descent with much hazard, but not being prepared with tools and labourers to dig for remains, we merely passed through to the river, and returned. The view of the river at this spot is really terrific.— Rolls and tumble along with inconceivable force, dashing against its rugged banks and forming like a hurricane. In some places it piles itself into huge waves, which tumble into foam and are succeeded by others. Upon the whole I think this scene, including the immense piles of rocks which bound it on every side, must be one of the most sublime that nature affords, the falls only excepted.— Large cokes of ice are found among the rocks along the rivulet that runs through the Devil's Hole, at all times of the year.
The banks of this river for the extent of 12 miles are one continuation of natural wonders, of which the falls and the De-vil's Hole, are the principal.

Winchester, Ky. Sept. 25.

I witnessed in this place, on yesterday, one of the most interesting trials that has ever come under my notice, the circumstances and issue of which are not only important to the parties concerned, but to society. It was a suit for the breach of a marriage contract, brought by R-chael Patton, of Paris, against John L.
Martin, of the same place, and removed to this court by change of venue. As the circumstances were somewhat peculiar, besides the usual interest, which would naturally be excited by such a case, no vel as it is in the jurisprudence of this country, a large number of citizens collected to hear the evidence and discussion. The engagement between the parties was clearly proven to have existed some years previous to the unfortunate affair which finally induced the defendant to withdraw his addresses, and refuse to comply with his contract, and which overwhelmed the plaintiff with shame and misery. The defendant attempted to justify his non-compliance by throwing the guilt of the transaction upon the brother in law of the plaintiff. It appeared, however, that for nine months previous to the unfortunate occurrence, this gentleman did not visit the house of Mr. Patton more than two or three times, owing to a misunderstanding existing between him and Miss Patton, from the circumstance of his having courted her against Martin. Every step taken by the defendant, although ably supported by his counsel, seemed to mark the transaction with a deeper die of deception. The brother-in-law of the plaintiff was fully exculpated from the charges which had been circulated against him—and much sympathy was excited in behalf of the unfortunate plaintiff, whose character, previously, was proved by many witnesses to have been of the fairest kind; who had been raised by exemplary and pious parents, and had moved in the first circles.

Mr. Bledsoe concluded the case on the part of the plaintiff in an eloquent and appropriate address to the jury, in which every feeling of honor and humanity was aroused. He concluded with the eloquent quotation from Goldsmith:

"When lovely woman stoops to folly,
And finds too late that men betray;
What charm can soothe her melancholy, What art can wash her guilt away?
The only art her guilt to cover,
To hide her shame from every eye;
To give repentance to her lover,
And wring his bosom—is to die."

It was near ten o'clock before the jury left the box, and in a few minutes returned with a verdict of three thousand dollars damages.

We believe there are but two other cases of this sort on record in this state. In both exemplary damages were given; $10,000 in one instance. [Reporter.

AMERICANS ABROAD.

The following is from the Diario di Roma, published at Rome, in August, 1817:

For the first time has appeared in these seas, passing from Leghorn, an American squadron, which has been off our port for several days, but has since sailed for Naples. We remarked the uncommon good appearance of these ships. A very exact military discipline, a perfect knowledge of naval affairs, and of navigation, appeared in every thing. Their equipments combined ease, simplicity, and instant effect, and were equally admirable in their fire arms and in pistols, and mul-tplied their discharges at pleasure. The exercise, activity and readiness of their mariners, and their perfect acquaintance with every thing, were observed not without surprise and wonder, and do honor to the nation to which they belong.
Their vessels were well found, fast sail-ers, and as neat as they were well built.

Soon after the visit of the fleet, anchored in our port a schooner from America, of a most beautiful construction, elegantly found, very light, and formed for fast sailing, constructed and armed like our light armed vessels. It was named the Cleopatra, belonging to a very rich traveller, George Crommishield, of Salem, who constructed her for his own use, and for the voyages he had undertaken in company with captain Benjamin Crow-mshields, his cousin. Besides the extreme neatness of every thing about the vessel to fit her for sea, her accommodations were so surprising and wonderful. Below was a hall of uncommon extent, in which the luxury of taste, the richness and elegance of the furniture, the harmony of the drapery, and of all the ornaments, inspired pleasure and gallantry. The apartment of the stern was equally rich and interesting. Five convenient bed chambers, displayed with the same elegance, were at the service of the captain, with an apartment for the plate of every kind, with which it was filled. Near was another apartment, which admitted all the officers of a kitchen, and in it was a pump, with three tubes, which passed through the vessel, to supply water from the sea, or discharge what they pleased, with the greatest ease. The rich and distinguished owner had with him, besides his family servants, several linguists, persons of high talents in music, and an excellent painter. Every thing to amuse makes a part of the daily entertainment. The owner and captain were affable, pleasing, and civil, and gave a full evidence of the talents, the industry, and the good taste of their nation, which yields to none in good sense and true civility. The above travellers, having complied with the usual rules of the city and having expressed the due respect to the Apostolical Del-gate, upon receiving a particular invitation, he visited the Cleopatra in company with many persons of distinction, and partook of an elegant collation.

PRIMEVAL SKETCHES,
From Burke's History of Virginia.

Our readers, we doubt not, will peruse with some interest, (in the absence of news) the following incidents derived from the earlier records of the history of our country.—They are calculated to give a pleasing exercise to the mind, by leading it back through the lapse of centuries, and giving it a participation in all the emotions which may be supposed to have been felt by our adventurous forefathers as they approached these (then) unknown shores; but more especially that impatient curiosity which they must have experienced to become acquainted with the new race of beings who inhabited those shores and of whose character and exterior appearance they had no knowledge previous to their landing. The benevolence, frankness and generosity of these false styled Savages, next attracts the reader's attention, and calls upon his cheek the flush of shame when he contrasts such virtue & magnanimity with the real ferocity of their civilized intruders. We dwell with rapture on the noble hospitality with which the adventurers were received at the village of Granganameo, and we can never forget the solicitude of his amiable consort to show them every mark of kindness and attention, while, with feelings of disgust and self abasement we would forever draw a veil over the base ingratitude with which it was requited at Aquasco-gok.

The expedition which made this first visit to the Southern shores of the Northern continent consisted only of two small vessels, commanded by captain Philip Amidas, and Arthur Barlow, and was fitted out at the expense of an association of wealthy men in England, of which Sir Walter Raleigh, was the principal.

On the twenty seventh April 1584, our adventurers set sail from the Thames, and passed the Canaries and the West Indies, a course at that time, owing to the imperfect state of navigation, conceived to be necessary; they approached the coast of Florida, and found themselves in shoal water.
Land was not yet visible; but a delicious fragrance, with which the gale came loaded, announced at once, its nearness and direction, and on the fourth day, still borne on the gulf stream, they saw land.

The adventurers, after coasting 120 miles, cast anchor at Woccone island in North Carolina. This island lay between Cape Hatteras and Cape Fear. It was covered with wood, and abounded with deer and wild fowl.

On the third day of their landing, they saw three of the natives in a canoe, one of whom went ashore, and waited without any signs of apprehension, the approach of the English.— He spoke long and earnestly to them, in his own language, and went boldly on board the ships. Having examined every part with his eyes and touch, he departed much pleased with the strange things he had seen, and with some trifles which had been presented to him, and returned in a short time with his canoe loaded with fish, which he had divided equally into heaps, making signs that each vessel should take one.

The next day several canoes appeared, in one of which came the King's brother, whose name was Granganameo. The King himself whose name was Wingins, lay ill of the wounds he had received in battle with a neighboring nation.

noes at a distance, and withdrawn from the great body of his attendants, doubtless to do away in the breasts of the English, all apprehensions of danger, and at the same time to manifest his confidence in them, repaired with only four of his people to the point of land, where the Indians had appeared the day before. Having spread a mat he sat down on one end, whilst his 4 attendants occupied the other; and when the English landed from their boats he discovered no apprehension, but invited them to sit down by him on the mat.

This invitation being accepted, he evinced his joy, by striking with his hand on his head and breast, and then on theirs;—signifying by this action that they were all one. His people preserved a profound silence, and when the English offered them presents he took them into his own possession, making signs that they were his servants.

After this interview, the natives came in great numbers, bringing skin, coral, and dying materials. But in the presence of Granganameo, none were permitted to trade, those excepted, who wore pieces of copper on their heads.
This chief supplied them every day with venison, fish and fruits, and invited them to his habitation at Roanoke.

This mutual interchange of good offices, having established a good understanding between the Indians and English, captain Amidas, with several others, ventured in a boat up the river Occam,* as it was called by the natives. The next evening they arrived at the isle of Roanoke, at the month of Albemarle sound, about seven leagues from the harbor, where they first anchored.

The village of Granganameo, situated on the north extremity of this island, consisted of nine houses, built of cedar and fortified with short palisades. When the English arrived there in their boat, Granganameo was absent; but his wife received them with generous hospitality.

Their boat she ordered to be drawn on shore, that it might not be injured by the surge; the oars, for better security, were taken to her house;— while the English, by her orders were conveyed from the boat on the backs of the natives. She took off their clothes, and washed their feet in warm water. When dinner was ready, she led them into an inner room, when they were feasted with venison, fish, fruit, and homony.

Whilst they were eating, some of her people came in with bows and arrows. The English suspecting treach-ery, drew to their arms, but the wife of Granganameo, perceiving their suspicious, ordered the bows to be taken from her people, their arrows to be broken, and themselves to be driven out of the house. In the evening the English thought it prudent to return to their boat, and having put off at a small distance from the shore, lay at anchor. Their generous hostess was hurt by this precaution, but there was no abatement in her desire to add to their comfort and accommodation.— Provisions of various sorts were carried by her directions to the boat, together with five mats, as a protection against the weather.—While several men and thirty women were commanded to remain all night on the shore as a guard against all possible danger.

They returned to England about the middle of September with two of the natives, Manteo and Wanchase, who voluntarily accompanied them. The discovery produced so much satisfaction in the court of Elizabeth, that the Queen herself named the country Virginia, in allusion to it, is thought, to her own virgin state, or as some have imagined, to the unadulterated purity and innocence of life and manners of the natives.

The glowing description given by the adventurers, of the fertility and beauty of Virginia, excited the curiosity and avarice of the people, and Sir Richard Grenville, a kinsman of Mr. Raleigh, and of eminence and repute at that time, as a military man, sailed the following year from Plymouth, with seven ships. He went by the usual route of the Canaries and the West Indies, where he made two Spanish prizes; and after having narrowly escaped shipwreck on Cape Fear, he came to anchor off the Island of Woccone, on the 26th of June.

Manteo, who had returned with this expedition, was of essential service to the adventurers. His knowledge of the coast, made him useful as a pilot; and of their language as an interpreter; while his attachment to the persons of the English, and his zeal in their cause, smoothed the difficulties to a free and friendly intercourse with his countrymen.

Under this guidance, they made several excursions, and visited several villages on the islands and the main.

At one of these towns, called A-quascoqok, an Indian stole a silver cup, which not being returned precisely at the time promised, drew down on the natives, the indiscriminating vengeance of the English commander. The town of Aquascoqok was burnt, and the standing corn, destroyed in the fields, whilst the affrighted people fled to the woods for protection.

Such return did the English make to this innocent people, for their generous and disinterested reception of them; for their anxiety to relieve their wants, by a liberal and regular supply of provisions; for the services of Granganameo and his wife, and the unsuspecting confidence reposed in them. All former acts of kindness were obliterated from the minds of those real savages, by the loss of a cup, for which even the offender had not been punished in a civilized community, without sufficient proof and the agency of a jury.

After this outrage, Grenville sailed to the Island of Hatteras, leaving be-

* The attention of Granganameo and his wife bears so strong a resemblance to the conduct of the natives and their chief, Guanshah, at St. Thomas, as described by Columbus, that it appears not improbable to mention it.—"The king, says he,
in a letter to Ferdinand and Isabella, having been informed of our misfortune, expressed great grief for our loss, and immediately sent aboard all the islanders, in many large canoes. We soon unloaded the ship of every thing that was upon the deck, as the king gave us great assistance.—He himself, with his brothers and relations, took all possible care, that every thing should be properly done, both aboard and on shore.—And from time to time he sent some of his relations to see weeping, to beg of me not to be dejected, for he would give me all he had.
I can assure your highnesses, that so much care would not be taken to secure our effects in any part of Spain, as all our property was put together in one place, near his palace, on it the houses, which he wanted, to prepare for the custody of it, were emptied.—He immediately placed a guard of armed men, who watched during the whole night, and those on shore lamented, as if they had been much interested in our loss."

the adventurers were received in the village of Granganameo, and can never forget the solicitude of amiable consort to show them every mark of kindness and attention, with feelings of disgust and abasement we would forever draw over the base ingratitude which it was required at Agnaseo.

The expedition which made this first voyage to the Southern shores of the Western continent consisted only of small vessels, commanded by Captain Philip Amidas, and Arthur Barlow, and was fitted out at the expense of an association of wealthy men in England, of which Sir Walter Raleigh was the principal.

Mr. Ralph Lane was constituted governor, and Philip Amidas, one of the captains of the former voyage, was appointed admiral. Thomas Hariot, the celebrated mathematician, and friend of Sir Walter Raleigh, with several others of note, remained behind with the colony.

Whilst the fleet lay at anchor off Hatteras, Granganameo paid his last visit to the English, in company with Manteo. After this, Sir R. Greenville sailed for England, and on the 18th of September, he arrived at Plymouth with a rich Spanish prize, which he had taken on the passage.

For the prevention and cure of BILIOUS AND MALIGNANT FEVERS is recommended. HAHN'S ANTI-BILIOUS PILLS. THIS Medicine has been attended with a degree of success highly grateful to the inventor's feelings in several parts of the West Indies and in the Southern and Middle States, &c.

The testimony of a number of persons can be adduced, who have reason to believe that a timely use of this salutary remedy has, under Providence, preserved their lives when in the most alarming circumstances.

Facts of this conclusive nature speak more in favour of a medicine than columns of pompous eulogy founded on mere assertion.

It is not indeed presumptuously proposed as an infallible cure, but the inventor has every possible reason to believe that a dose of these Pills taken once in every two weeks during the prevalence of our bilious fevers, will prove an infallible preventive; and further, that in the earlier stages of those diseases their use will very generally succeed in restoring health, and frequently in cases esteemed desperate and beyond the power of common remedies.

The operation of these pills is perfectly mild, so as to be used with safety by persons in every situation and of every age. They are excellently adapted to carry off superfluous bile and prevent its morbid secretions—to restore and amend the appetite—to produce a free perspiration and thereby prevent colds which are often of fatal consequences. A dose never fails to remove a cold if taken on its first appearance; they are celebrated for removing habitual costiveness—sickness at the stomach and severe head-ache—and ought to be taken by all persons on a change of climate.

They have been found remarkably efficacious in preventing and curing disorders attendant on long voyages, and should be procured and carefully preserved for use by every seaman.

Hamilton's Elixir,

A sovereign remedy for colds, obstinate coughs, asthmas, sore throats, catarrhs, and approaching consumptions. To parents who have children afflicted with the HOOPING COUGH, this discovery is of the first magnitude, as it affords immediate relief, checks the progress, and in a short time entirely removes the most cruel disorders to which children are liable. The Elixir is perfectly agreeable, and the dose so small that no difficulty arises in taking it.

Hamilton's Grand Restorative, Is recommended as an invaluable medicine for the speedy relief and permanent cure of Nervous Disorders, Violent cramps in the stomach and bowels, Lowness of spirits, Indigestion, Loss of appetite, Impurity of blood, Melancholy, Hysterical affection, Goit in the stomach, Inward weaknesses, Pains in the limbs, and debility, Relaxations, &c.

Hamilton's Essence and Extract of Mustard, A safe and effectual remedy for acute and chronic rheumatism, gout, rheumatic pain, palsy, lumbago, numbness, white swellings, chilblains, sprains, bruises, pain in the face and neck, &c. &c.

Lee's Ointment for the Itch, Warranted an infallible remedy at one application, may be used with perfect safety by pregnant women, or on infants a week old, not containing a particle of mercury or any dangerous ingredient whatever, and not accompanied with that tormenting smart which attends the application of other remedies.

Hahn's true & genuine German Corn Plaster, An infallible remedy for corns, speedily removing them root and branch, without giving any pain.

BOOKSELLERS, KING-STREET, ALEXANDRIA,

RESPECTFULLY inform the public that they have just received from

Lee's Medicine Store,

No. 46, Maiden Lane, New-York, a fresh supply of the following valuable MEDICINES:

Hamilton's Worm-destroying Lozenges,

Which have within sixteen years past cured an immense number of persons of both sexes of every age and in every situation, of various dangerous complaints arising from WORMS, and from obstructions or foulness in the stomach and bowels.

This medicine bears no analogy whatever to others of similar titles so commonly complained of as operating with violence on the contrary a particular excellence of this remedy is its being suited to every age and constitution. It contains nothing but what is perfectly innocent & is so mild in its operation that it cannot injure the most delicate pregnant lady or the tenderest infant of a week old should no worms exist in the body; but will without pain or griping cleanse the stomach and bowels of whatever is four or offensive, and thereby prevent the production of worms and many fatal disorders. The lozenges are particularly efficacious in carrying off all gross humours and eruptions, feverish and bilious complaints, and are the safest and mildest purgative that can be used on any occasion.

Description of Worms, and the symptoms by which they are known.

Worms which infest the human body are chiefly of four kinds viz—The Terebra or large round worm; the Ascarides or small maw-worm; the Cucurbitaria or short flat white worm; and lastly, the Tenuia or tape-worm, so called from its resemblance to tape. This is often many yards long and is full of joints. It is most hurtful and most difficult to remove.

Among the symptoms attending worms are—disagreeable breath, especially in the morning; bad and corrupted gums; itching in the nose, and about the seat; convulsions, epileptic fits, and sometimes privation of speech; starting and grinding of the teeth in sleep; irregular appetite. Sometimes loathing food and sometimes voracious; purging with slimy and fetid stools; vomiting; large and hard belly; pains and sickness at the stomach; pains in the head and thighs and lowness of spirits; slow fever with small and irregular pulse; a dry cough; excessive thirst; sometimes pale and unhealthy countenance and sometimes the face bloated and flushed.

Persons afflicted with any of the above symptoms should have immediate recourse to Hamilton's Worm Destroying Lozenges, which have been constantly attended with success in all complaints similar to these above described.

A dose of this medicine given occasionally during the warm season, will effectually prevent "the vomiting and purging of children"—a dreadful disorder, which annually destroys thousands of the infant part of our citizens. It is likewise the mildest and most certain remedy known, and has restored to health and strength a great number who in an advanced stage of this fatal complaint. Particular and plain instructions are given for every part of the necessary treatment in such cases.

Children generally take this medicine with eagerness; having a pleasing appearance, and an agreeable taste.

CHARLES SLADE having obtained the agency of the above works for this District, a regular supply of NAILS and BRADS will be kept at his store, on Prince-street, and RICHARD SLADE's store, upper-end of King-street, and sold on the same terms as they can be obtained at in Philadelphia. These nails are esteemed by the carpenters superior in quality to any manufactured in the United States; and the works are now brought to such perfection as to enable the proprietors to render them as low as the most inferior qualities.

Contiguity to market is also among its advantages; it being within less than a mile of Mr. Jonathan Janney's mill, where the Alexandria price may be had for grain. Rich Kenhawa Lands for Sale or Barter.

I WILL sell or exchange, for property in this district or its vicinity, a valuable tract of land in Mason county, Virginia, situate on the Great Kenhawa River, at the mouth of Eighteen Mile Creek, distant from Point Pleasant about eighteen miles. This tract binds upon the river, and contains by patent one thousand and fifty acres, a large proportion of which is with bottom. The title is old, and indisputable, having been located and surveyed by Gen. Washington before the Revolution. What may be considered as adding much to its value is the passage of the western road through it. By a reference to Mr. Madison's map of Virginia, the situation of the land may be designated. Apply to Colonel Francis Peyton, or

For Sale.

THE Tract of Land whereon I reside, containing 700 acres, binding on the Little River Turnpike Road, and adjoining the town at Fairfax court house, about 10 miles from Alexandria and 14 miles from Georgetown and Washington city. It lies handsomely and is extremely well watered; about three hundred acres in wood. This tract might be divided into three or four lots with great convenience, as to cleared land, wood and water.

Also,

One other Tract of Land adjoining, containing 600 acres, nearly all in wood—lies well and is well watered—with a great proportion of good meadow land. This tract might conveniently be divided into three or four lots.

Also,

One other Tract of Land, containing 450 acres, adjacent to the first mentioned—lies well and well watered—to enable improvements, with a sufficiency of wood and timber. This tract might be divided into two suitable lots.

A more minute description is thought unnecessary, as no person would purchase without viewing the lands, which can be shewn at any time.

These tracts will be sold as they are, or divided into lots to suit purchasers, and will be sold a bargain, if immediate application be made. Possession of the first and last mentioned tracts can be had at any time, the other the first day of January next. The terms will be a small proportion in cash; for the balance any reasonable credit, on being well secured, and interest paid annually.
